

September 4 • School Board Meeting Recap

High School Task Force to tour schools

School board member and High School Facilities Task Force Co-Chair Cindy Meyer briefed her fellow school board members on progress made by the recently formed action group.

Meyer reported the task force met in June and will meet again September 27. They are also scheduled to take a three hour tour of Wa-Hi and Lincoln High School prior to this month's meeting.

Meyer said the district has assembled a dynamic group of Walla Walla leaders to help study district high school needs and issues. She said this group's interests, passions, and expertise will provide key insight to this study.

The work of the High School Facilities Task Force will be organized into three phases. First, the group will answer the question -- "What is?" Next, they will reflect on -- "What Should Be?" in relation to a successful high school experience. The group will then determine the best strategies for narrowing the difference in Walla Walla. Staff and public input will be gathered along the way as the group completes its work.

Recommendations will then go to the school board for consideration and possible action plans.

Pioneer summer "boot camp" takes students to outer space

Summer break was an adventure for Pioneer Middle School students participating in the school's extended learning programs offered at no cost through GEAR UP and Millennials grants. Summer programs -- coordinated by Marika Tomkins -- included Space and Technology Boot Camp, Human Health Expedition, Career Explorations, Creative Writing and Music Camp.

In addition to being well planned and organized, students reported they had fun learning. The summer programs also allowed Pioneer teachers to team teach and improve by reflecting on each other's work.

(L-R) Pioneer Middle School 7th grade students Kelsey Gabel and Isaiah Stodola reported to school board members how much fun they had learning while working with scientists from the LIGO Observatory during the summer Space and Technology Boot Camp.

Preliminary enrollment counts up this fall

With the first official enrollment count of 2007-2008 due Friday, Deputy Superintendent Dr. Bill Jordan reported to school board members last night preliminary "head count" tallies are up nearly 200 students from this time last year.

As of Tuesday, head count numbers were 6258 compared to 6091 last September 1.

One reason for the bump in enrollment to start the year is the addition of the Columbia Virtual Academy extension of the Homelink program at Berney Elementary. Currently 110 students are enrolled with this number possibly growing as the school year continues.

Jordan noted the district's 2007-08 budget was based on 5700 Full-time Equivalent (FTE) students. He said by Friday's official count he'll have a clear picture on the district's FTE count.

Jordan said he is encouraged by the early enrollment figures and will continue to closely monitor student counts.

Transportation perfect on inspection

Last night Business Manager Aron Rausch recognized the district's Transportation Department for recently receiving a perfect, 100 percent score on its Washington State Patrol bus inspection.

Rausch said although the department has an excellent record with inspections, this is the first time Walla Walla Public Schools scored perfect.

He gave special recognition to Transportation Mechanic Colter Mohnhey for his dedication, experience and attention to detail to help the department meet this outstanding standard.

Inspectors test lights, brakes, tires, safety equipment and more during this comprehensive inspection. No unsatisfactory marks were noted on the district's entire bus fleet.

"In three years as a bus inspector, this was the best inspection I have been involved in," Washington State Patrol Inspector Michael McKnight said in his recap report to the district.

Rausch also introduced new Transportation Director Steve Olson to school board members. Olson, who was the Director of Transportation for the Bellingham School District prior to coming to Walla Walla, said he is proud of the department and is excited about finding ways to further improve. Olson has extensive experience in school bus maintenance, operations and scheduling.

"I take maintenance and school bus safety very seriously," he said. "We always scored perfect in Bellingham and expect the same here."
