- A - Academic Excellence
- R - Be Respectful

Blue Ridge Core Values Cheer
"Have Fun. Be Safe. S.O.A.R.!"

Last year Blue Ridge Elementary staff set out to create a more positive school climate by establishing the Soaring Eagle Program. This program rewards students for making good choices, academic performance and peer leadership.

"We let the students know that we value each of them as individuals and that we take the business of educating them seriously," Principal Connie Taylor-Randall said.

A key component of the program is self-evaluation and student reflection. Students complete an evaluation form which asks them a series of questions relating to academics, behavior and social expectations.

The program hinges on consistent performance at school as students in the program are required to maintain high standards throughout the year.

"The choice to do their best academically and to behave appropriately is theirs," Taylor-Randall said. "We find they choose to SOAR at Blue Ridge."

How the program works...

- Each month a teacher selects a student to be considered for the program.
- Students complete self evaluations and discuss results with their teachers.
- Students meeting the goals are given an application to the program.
- Students then get signatures from school personnel.
- Once students get the signatures and meet criteria, they get S.O.A.R. necklaces at the monthly Super Eagle Assembly.
- Each month students meeting criteria receive new beads for their necklaces and get to wear them at school.

Regional discussions on Transportation Co-op continue

Superintendent Rich Carter reported to school board members last night he is planning to visit with regional school district superintendents and school board members beginning next week to further discuss options for joining a Walla Walla coordinated Transportation Cooperative for bus maintenance and service.

Carter said he will meet during their regularly scheduled school board meetings to provide them more details about this service designed to save their districts thousands of dollars on bus repairs and upkeep.

Carter organized a similar operation in his last school district in White Salmon, WA. In addition to lower costs for service and parts for Walla Walla buses, Carter said our community gets the added benefit of having state dollars pay for 90 percent of the facility and equipment needed to run the operation.

Carter reported some districts have concerns, which he plans to address. One concern is committing to the program for 10 years. Another concern is distance. Carter said he plans to discuss possibilities for a mobile repair unit and a shuttle service for bus drivers.

He said he is asking for their commitment this month to meet an upcoming state deadline to submit the proposal for funding.

Walla Walla High School teacher earns citizenship

Last week Walla Walla High School Spanish teacher Refugio Reyes became a naturalized citizen of the United States at the U.S. Courthouse in Spokane.

Reyes' students have been studying immigration this fall and took a field trip to Spokane to witness the ceremony as part of their studies. The road to citizenship for Reyes took many years and a lot of preparation, and he hopes his example will help others reach this goal.
