Seattle NAACP President speaks to Wa-Hi students on Martin Luther King, Jr.'s legacy

"You have the power of one to eradicate racism," Carl Bernard Mack, president of the Seattle National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said to Wa-Hi students during an all school assembly Tuesday to celebrate Martin Luther King, Jr. Day.

Mack, a graduate of Mississippi State University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Mechanical Engineering who now is an engineer with METRO King County, challenged students to 'scratch their conscience' as they reflect on treating people equally.

"I want kids in Walla Walla to realize racism is stupid, it makes no sense," said Mack who took office as President of the Seattle Branch of the NAACP in January.

Mack, a powerfully built, towering man, used his "hip-hop" style approach to engage students.

His passionate delivery captivated the Wa-Hi student body as scores of students lined up for hugs and advice after his speech.

Mack is a noted historian, author and speaker. He discussed how Martin Luther King, Jr. helped lead him away from his self-centered ways as a young man to an adult who is committed to giving back to society. Mack and his wife, Jamiyo, reside in Federal Way, WA with their one month-old son Joshua.

Pioneer Middle School teacher elected city Planning Commission chairperson

Pioneer Middle School 8th Grade Language Arts/Social Studies teacher Kenny Renner-Singer was recently elected Chairperson of the City of Walla Walla Planning Commission for 2004. His responsibilities as chairperson include leading Planning Commission meetings.

"One of my main interests as a commissioner is to keep working with the city to encourage more redevelopment and infill in some of our older neighborhoods," Renner-Singer said.

In 2003 Renner-Singer served as Vice-Chair of the Planning Commission. Renner-Singer was recently appointed to his second three-year term on the City of Walla Walla Planning Commission. Sharpstein Elementary Third Grade Bilingual teacher Sara Van Donge was also just appointed to her second three-year term on the commission.

The City of Walla Walla Planning Commission considers all amendments, modifications or alterations to the City's comprehensive plan, zoning code, and subdivision code.

The Commission conducts hearings on subdivisions, street vacations, and other planning functions and forwards recommendations to the City Council for review and final decision. Commissioners are required to be residents of Walla Walla County. Appointments are made to unexpired or full three-year terms.

Thanks!

Citizens for Schools

From all of us at Walla Walla Public Schools, thanks to all Citizens for Schools committee members for your efforts to ensure our schools have the resources and support necessary to provide essential educational programs and activities to Walla Walla children.

Special thanks to Co-Chairs Cindy Meyer and Bob Hill for their leadership in providing information to the community regarding the February 3 Maintenance and Operations Levy.
