Strategic Plan Update

Strategic initiative investments detailed in mid-plan report to school board

Superintendent Dr. Wade Smith reported how the school board's prioritized investments are having a profound impact across the district during his 2017-2022 Strategic Plan Mid-Plan Review during last night's regular study meeting.

Targeted investments over the past two years have been prioritized on the following Strategic Initiatives:

- Curriculum Adoption Program
- Technology Program Development
- Post-Secondary/Career Culture
- District-wide Behavioral Support
- District-wide Safety and Security
- Student Engagement Programming
- Latino Student & Family Outreach

As the district reaches the mid-way marker for its five-year Strategic Plan, Superintendent Smith says it is critical to remain disciplined on these high-yield initiatives.

"We need to practice them, support them and actually get good at them before we move on to something different," said Dr. Smith.

"Our Strategic Plan provides consistency, clarity, and purpose to our core mission of educating current and future students of Walla Walla Public Schools."

Superintendent Smith shared highlights of the key investments including significant curriculum adoptions the past three years, chromebooks for nearly every student in the district and an expanded Behavior Team to address the social and emotional needs of students. Latino outreach has been enhanced and an additional campus safety officer ensures full-time coverage at both middle schools. Engagement expansions including middle school soccer, 21st Century, weight room and start-up clubs are connecting students.

Curriculum Adoption

Last night, school board members approved a new K-5 Mathematics curriculum marking a $500,000 investment milestone for the Strategic Plan. The adoption process spanned 12 months and included materials review, standards alignment to state requirements, piloting of materials, parent input and final review by the Instructional Materials Committee. The next step is ordering materials and planning for teacher professional development later this spring.

Legislative Update

Governor supports WW Center for Children and Families funding

School board members conducted a conference call last night with lobbyist Marie Sullivan to get an update on this year's Legislative session. Sullivan reported it appears there is not much interest in education related spending during this 60-day short legislative session.

Bills related to school levies, School Employees Benefits Boards (SEBB) and staff funding ratios are not getting traction, according to Sullivan. She reported legislators are recommending further study on these issues following this session in preparation for next year's long legislative session.

She reported good news from Olympia as Governor Jay Inslee personally endorsed keeping $95,000 in his budget proposal to help fund the director of the new Walla Walla Center for Children and Families. If allocated, WWPS will use the funds to help coordinate programming at the new early learning center.
